R.A.F. BLOWS UP NAZI TANKER

LIBYA—SPRINGBOARD OF SPRING DRIVE ON NAZIS?

THIS IS THE REMAINS of what was once a Red Cross ambulance ferry which was shot down by a force of enemy Messerschmitts as it prepared to make a landing during the Libyan campaign. These craft are operated by the Royal Australian Air Force between advanced dressing stations and base hospitals. Occurrence was witnessed by Sir Walter Monckton, Middle East information director.

DAMAGE TO ENEMY SHIPS, shown after an R.A.F. raid on the Spanish Mole, Tripoli, is revealed in this photograph taken from a German soldier by British officers. This verifies Allied reports.

EN ROUTE TO TOBRUK harbor are these larries filled with German and Italian prisoners. The men will be embarked for transport to back areas and a war prisoners' camp far for the duration of the war.

TREATMENT is given these wounded Italian soldiers at a South African field dressing station during the fighting in Libya. Prison camps await these men as soon as they are able to be transported.

RETRIBUTION IS METED OUT to this heavy German bomber, a Junkers 88, shot down by night fighters of the R.A.F. as it was attempting to raid a British camp during the Allied Libyan drive.

REDS HOLD IN EAST AS ALLIES PREPARE IN WEST

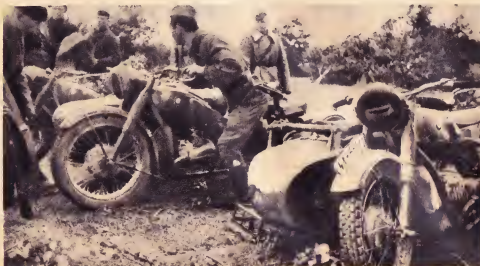

SOVIET'S FIGHTING AMAZONS are sturdy and spirited women. Their courage, stamina and fighting qualities have been proven in battle. These women realize that they have as much to lose in defeat as have their men folk; hence their grim determination to fight alongside the men. Here are shown two young girls, garbed in loose camouflaged garments, alert at their post. Long before the war, Russian women were being trained as snipers, as well as in other war duties. One, a guerrilla, killed a Nazi general.

THESE ARE Rumanian soldiers, taken prisoner by the Reds. Reports of trouble in Rumania and a clash between Rumanian and Hungarian troops indicate this Black sea country isn't happy in the Axis camp.

READY TO DRAW A BEAD on an unwary Nazi soldier is this Soviet sniper, a typical hard-fighting and rugged soldier. Russia boasts a powerful reserve army of some 10,000,000 men ready to counter Hitler's contemplated summer offensive.

THE USEFULNESS of horses even in present-day warfare that is dominated by the tank has been signally demonstrated by the Don Cossacks in this winter's campaigning in south Russia. By a cavalry charge, in one battle, they routed a German force that was assisted by tanks. Here these famous troopers are seen using their highly trained horses as parapets behind which they fire.

IN THE LEE OF A HILL, these Soviet soldiers wait for the lifting of an artillery barrage before they go forward to attack an enemy position. As can be seen, they have good equipment such as automatic rifles and light machine-guns.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT machine-guns played an important part in beating off German bombing attacks on Moscow. In the streets of another city closer to today's firing line, this alert crew waits for the Stukas.

MILLIONS OF WOMEN in Russia have been mobilized for war effort, even for combatant service. This husky squad marching along a street in Leningrad forms part of a highly efficient women's ambulance corps.

MUD, BARBED WIRE and Nazis are all the same to these iron chargers of the Red army, which are able to plow through or over most obstacles which get in the way. Such tanks can do heavy ground work while the Russian air force bombs and machine-guns the enemy. This combination, ideal for offensive action, is also the best means of defence. The Reds are not worried by Hitler's plans.

PREPARING TO WITHSTAND the real thing, these Soviet sailors decontaminate the deck of their ship during a mock gas attack. The Soviet navy is proving a big factor in the Russo-German war.

SOVIET WOMEN COLLECT warm clothing for their soldiers, who are waging a titanic battle against the Nazi military machine. At home or at the battle front, Russian women are doing their utmost.

AT TORPEDO FIRING STATIONS, these Soviet soldiers aim at an enemy ship. The Nazis have lost a great number of warships, transports and other vessels in action with the Soviet navy.

PROOF AGAINST Russia's worst sub-zero weather, these well-clad Soviet troops dismayed the Nazis and heartened the Allies by their superb fighting qualities and their magnificent stamina.

CANADIAN NAVY BEARS ONE THIRD OF CONVOY BURDEN

THE SUB MENACE recently has increased, and Winston Churchill says the Battle of the Atlantic has taken a turn for the worse, making convoy duty doubly important. Above is a striking shot of a convoy, taken from the stern of a shepherd destroyer, just before it came within sight of Britain. Overhead is a plane of the coastal command on patrol. Most of the Canadian navy is on Atlantic duty, and Naval Minister Angus Macdonald recently said that it was "bearing 30% of the burden of conveying ships."

MEMBERS OF THE ship's company pay a visit to their mascot, "Binkie," who occupies a star role on board the boat. She has a hammock all to herself. Men such as above are typical of those manning the ships that ensure the safe arrival of convoys overseas.

SINCE THE BEGINNING of the war, more than 8,000 ships flying the flags of 17 nations and carrying over 50,000,000 tons of materials have left Canada's ocean ports. This naval gunner is manning an Oerlikon gun, one of the most popular of naval weapons.

MODELS OF GERMAN AIRCRAFT come in for close scrutiny of the commanding officers and other officers aboard the destroyer. By this study, instant identification of enemy aircraft is possible. Many such models are being made by model plane builders in Canada.

that's horse sense!

● A smooth-running, carbon-free engine has less "drag"—uses less gas, delivers more power and pep per gallon of gasoline. So it's actually downright economy to pay a few pennies more for Mobiloil—the world's quality oil. Mobiloil users report up to 25% greater oil mileage.

Mobiloil surges to all parts of your engine. It clings to metal surfaces in a tough, protective film—saving horsepower, saving gasoline and stretching engine life.

Dirty, thin, gritty winter oil is a menace to your motor. Get rid of it quick. Fill up with pure, fresh Mobiloil today. Look for the Mobiloil sign.

BRITAIN KICKS OUT OLD DRILL BOOK FOR THIS

SCALING THE 100-foot side of a stone quarry to carry out an attack is all in the day's work to these soldiers. This new battle drill system is designed to equip them for the time when Britain assumes the offensive.

THE OLD IDEA of square drill and "spit and polish," essential of a peacetime army, have virtually been kicked out by Britain's new war minister, Sir James Grigg, in the training now given the British Tommy. His basic training, marching and rifle drill has been cut down from two months to five weeks and then he goes to advanced training such as the handling of all types of weapons. He learns to undergo the real conditions of war before coming in actual contact with the enemy in this "hardening" course.

TRAINING SUCH AS THIS gives individual initiative to the troops. At Gibraltar, as seen above, it's doubly important that they be able to climb steep inclines. Street fighting and field craft is in their curriculum.

H.M. THE KING watches troops as they practise disembarkation and assault of land defences. Methods they learn here are already being put into practice by commandos in their daring assaults on Nazi-Norway and France.

THEY WERE MADE FOR EACH OTHER

The "EYE" that looks through Steel

"In normal times, a manufacturing mistake might lose a customer. Now that we are engaged in all-out war production, a mistake may lose a father, a son or a brother."

W. R. Campbell

(From a talk by President W. R. Campbell to Ford of Canada employees)

A crankshaft is set up under the "eye" of the giant X-ray machine. The operator steps outside the lead-lined safety chamber, pulls a switch to set the X-rays working. Deep into the solid metal, the mechanical "eye" probes—taking pictures that will reveal the tiniest imperfection. The X-ray test for metals and parts is one of the precautions in "the Ford way" of building fighting machines for fighting men.

Far off, over a sand-swept desert, Empire soldiers speed into battle in sturdy Canadian-built universal carriers — their automatic guns spitting defiance at the foe. They trust their lives to vital metal parts minutely inspected by the scientist in the Ford of Canada plant.

The Canadian worker may never hear a gun shot. But his skill and knowledge ride into battle with those Empire warriors. His painstaking job is part of the production program which has sent thousands upon thousands of strong, dependable vehicles to help our fighting forces.

CLOSE TEAMWORK

THE BRITISH ARMY has made a revolutionary move by announcing a few weeks ago the organization of an army air corps. Here is seen how the R.A.F. and army get together on manoeuvres, the ground troops advancing through a smoke-screen laid by the plane. Army planes under operational control of the army also give a hand to those below by reconnaissance, which sometimes requires photos.

THUNDERING GUNS

CHURCHILL ANNOUNCED recently that the battle of the Atlantic has taken a turn for the worse. Poised in Norwegian ports, the German navy threatens the British lifeline from America via Iceland. A major naval battle looms in the offing. H.M.S. Duke of York, fifth battleship of the King George V class, 35,000 tons, shown here with guns blazing, is ready to meet the challenge.

TAFFY PULL AT THE INGLIS PLANT!

BUT IT ISN'T TAFFY—it's cold rolled steel that is here being pulled into shape. INGLIS craftsmanship produces this 50,000 lb. Draw Bench. This interesting example of human ingenuity pulls cold steel with the ease and nonchalance of a housewife drawing thread through a needle. Draw benches are only one of the products of the John Inglis Co. Limited Commercial Department.

DALI HAS A DREAM

SURREALISM is a modern movement, purporting to express the subconscious mind by presenting images without order or sequence, as in a dream. Spanish Salvador Dalí, currently in high New York favor, has a nurse tap his eyeballs scientifically with absorbent cotton to give him strange visions.

THIS HIGH PRIEST of weirdly symbolic art is seen in the trance state, incubating what nightmare and extravaganzas as the attendant nurse drops perfume on his eyelids. The precise nature of the fragrance is a strictly guarded trade secret which the maestra thinks all-important.

AND HERE'S THE ODD upsurge from the subconscious mind that this master of the incomprehensible puts on paper before he is fully awake. That saving machine only deepens the mystery. It needs no signature, for surrealist fans can tell at a glance that this inimitable enigma is a genuine Dalí.

ANN SHERIDAN displays an exquisite evening wrap of robin's egg blue worn over a maize crepe gown.

THIS SPORT DRESS of China pink linen and spun rayon appeared at a recent New York fashion exhibit.

GLOVES AND HAT MATCH in effective contrast with the red and white silk jersey in this spring creation, which has a strong southern pre-bellum flavor. It was very appropriately shown at a southern hat fashion show. The very clever black and white checks are, oddly enough, called "idiot" checks.

OTTAWA TRIGGER GIRLS PUNCH HOLES IN NICKELS

A WARM WELCOME from the right end of a rifle is promised any would-be parachutist or fifth columnist by the girls' rifle club of Lisgar collegiate, Ottawa. Pretty Anna-Jean Holmes is ready with her rifle at all times.

A STEADY HAND and keen eye is aptly demonstrated by this member who has already recorded five successive hits on a nickel from 25 yards. Such marksmanship would be welcome at stemming a parachute invasion try.

PUNCHING A HOLE in a nickel from 25 yards is a prime example of the marksmanship some of the girls have attained. Jean Kippen gives some of the members a talk on the thrill of being able to plug a nickel at that distance.

"READY! AIM! FIRE!" And the chances are very good that the little round circle known as the bull's-eye will come back well marked. The girls were coached in their rifle drill by two soldiers of the reserve army. At first all they had to do was fire the rifles but they now handle the cleaning and the loading.

HERE IS THE STAR WEEKLY MAP of India, that complex of religious, social and linguistic groups which, under the threat of Japanese aggression, is now rapidly drawing itself together in a rising tide of nationalism. Awakened by the westernizing influence of British rule, the Indians are now demanding political independence as a prerequisite to all-out aid for Britain. But now her teeming millions are becoming Indian religions stressed the unimportance of trying to run their own show, and in their own scheme; he was not, as in western philosophy, have seen flaws in the much-vaunted western but a minor cog in a vast system. The result would like to try and improve upon it. There are most of her history as a subject state, quietly people in India, of which about 68 per cent. are Hindoo, 22 per cent. Moslems, and the rest of other religious groups. Of these, the Hindoos are most divided by barriers of caste. This map indicates the great natural wealth of the country, much of which is still undeveloped or unorganized. The Indian renaissance now seems to be at hand, but development may be painful.

DESTRUCTION IN PHILIPPINES

JAPANESE CONTROL of the still resisting Philippines is not effective enough to keep pictures of war scenes being flown here via Australia. A Jap air raid caused these fires along the main street of a Philippine town.

"The idea of Grandma thrusting me into a romper without even one little sprinkle of Johnson's! I'd just like to tell her how smooth and slick and comfortable I haven't been feeling all day!"

"Believe me—this is the last time I go visiting without a can of downy-soft, soothing Johnson's clutched in my fist. A baby can't be too careful!"

ISLAND FORTS OF BRITAIN READY TO REPEL NAZI

ON THE ALERT at all times are the men who man Britain's coastal defences. Ready to play an important part in defending any invasion thrust are the "island forts" dotting the coastal waters. Here the gunners who man the big guns prepare for sleep, some in bunks, some in hammocks, navy fashion.

EVERY EFFORT is made to keep the men manning these forts cheerful, and concerts are often arranged to break the monotony of their life. Above picture is of one of the huge guns.

RIGOROUS TRAINING is the lot of these men. Taken from the deck of a fort, this picture gives an idea of the armored superstructure.

HERE'S HOW THE JAPS FIGHT

FOUR YEARS FIGHTING in China gave the Japanese plenty of practice for her war with the United States and the British Empire. Landing barges are seen here in action near Canton, which the Chinese recently tried to relieve.

FROM A POINT of vantage on a roof top, Japanese troops set up a machine-gun nest to wipe out lingering snipers.

A JAPANESE landing party crouches in a narrow lane awaiting the opportune moment to charge its objective. The picture demonstrates how completely each soldier is equipped. The uniforms appear stout and serviceable.

THIS PRIMITIVE method is used by the Japanese troops to pull their guns and field pieces over the rugged terrain of China. A cavalry arm has been developed for fighting guerrillas.

TOO CONFIDENT were the Japanese when they crossed this river in China during their drive on Changsha. THOUGH ALL BITTERNS are masters of the art of camouflage, the dwarf species whose habitat is Sumatra is most skilful of all at disguising itself against the reedy background in the swamps in which it lives. Here a mother and chick rest quietly in the nest with no attempt of concealment.

WHAT AN AMAZING CHANGE takes place when, at a cameraman's approach, the bird stages its camouflage. It draws itself up, stiffens its body like a ramrod and becomes motionless. Note that the infant does exactly the same, although its yellow fluff makes it a trifle more conspicuous.

PUERTO RICO—U.S. OUTPOST

DAILY PRACTICE under regular firing conditions is obtained by these hardy soldiers. They are seen carrying ammunition from one of their well-stocked dumps through the trenches to the guns which protect this West Indian isle.

SHOWN LOADING a machine-gun are American soldiers. Puerto Rico, situated about 1,400 miles southeast of New York, has been American since 1898 and was formerly Spanish. It was discovered by Columbus in 1493.

NEW DAM TAMES ONTARIO RIVER

IN FORMER YEARS, southern Ontario's turbulent Grand River has sent destructive spring floods thundering southward; in the summer its flow dwindled to a mere trickle. But this year the new Shand dam, seen above, is regulating the flow by means of a lake seven miles long and two miles wide.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, this is a stretch of highway bordering the Grand river, pictured immediately after the spring flood several years ago. The huge blocks of ice were swept up by the uncontrolled waters of the river.

HERE IS THE SAME SPOT as shown in the picture above, photographed at a corresponding time this spring. Although the dam was not completely closed, the rush of water was sufficiently taken up to prevent a flood.

HERE IS WHAT happened when the Grand river used to go on the rampage. This is a portion of a large, mile-long ice jam which formed on the river east of Fergus several years ago. Bridges and buildings would often be swept away in the resulting floods that came annually with the spring break-up.

THIS IS THE same spot as is shown in the picture above, but taken this year with the Shand dam in operation—quite a striking difference. Municipalities affected paid 25 per cent. of the cost, and the provincial and federal governments split the rest. It is Canada's largest conservation scheme.

THE DAM is 72 feet high, 300 feet wide at the base, and more than a third of a mile long. It is located three miles east of Fergus, Ont.

LIBYA—KEY TO ALLIED VICTORY?

THE BRITISH ADVANCE was temporarily bogged down in Cyrenaica when heavy rains ran amok, making military progress nearly impossible. Some military observers feel that a British victory in Libya would pave the way for an all-out invasion of Italy and, with Italy out of the way, Axis morale would be affected to a great extent. R.A.F. personnel pictured above took bailing out in day's work.

BRITISH TOMMIES enjoy a meal in the well-ventilated interior of Tobruk's once fashionable hotel. Captured from the Italians, it is now definitely "under new management." With the Royal Navy maintaining a supply lifeline to the troops in the Middle East, the way is once more being paved for an all-out offensive against the enemy. Meanwhile vigilant patrols record every Axis movement.

ABLAZE AND SMOKING are these armored vehicles, mechanized transports and tanks belonging to the Axis. They ran into South Africans, who lost no time in completely demolishing both the vehicles and the workshops.

BOMBED MALTA AND PLYMOUTH

LIKE OTHER raid-scarred cities in Britain, Plymouth has been rapidly clearing away evidences of the bomb damage, and this picture, recently released by the British censor, shows how far the city has succeeded. Plymouth was one of the hardest hit of all British cities, and was heavily bombed for days on end. In many centres, carefully planned civic reconstruction projects have already begun.

ONLY A WEEK after his arrival in Malta, Major-General D. M. W. Beak, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., new troop commander, had a miraculous escape when a thousand-pound bomb ripped through his home within a few feet of him. No one was injured. Here is the damaged house showing his bedroom, left.

RUSSIANS MASTER MUD AND SNOW WITH CAVALRY

SCARCELY VISIBLE against the snow-covered ground of early Russian spring, these white-clad Soviet soldiers creep forward in an attempt to dislodge the Germans from an unnamed town. The smoke is from supporting Russian artillery. Russia's heavy snow-fall is responsible for the vast seas of mud which characterize the Russian spring. In snow and mud Russian cavalry played major roles.

HERE A RUSSIAN CAPTAIN is congratulated by fellow-officers after a combat flight in which he is said to have shot down one German airplane and driven off three others. It's all in a day's work.

THE RUSSIAN NAVY has its hands full these days. Here, on a minesweeper, Russian sailors are preparing to clear the seas of explosives. This crew destroyed 20 antennae mines in one sweep.

LIKE A HUGE SPIDER'S WEB is this camouflage net, spread over a British Hurricane hiding from the enemy in the snows of Russia. When the R.A.F. wing returned home, planes were left for the Reds.

CAMOUFLAGED in these "clown suits," Russian snipers are seen "pecking away" at the enemy with powerful guns. Gen. Voroshilov states the Red forces have been multiplied threefold in nine years.
